The building, which is clad with black fiber-cement panels, offers Stuttgart's best views for the people who work in it. From the foyer, a long axis leads directly to a panorama window and below this there is a large hall for presentations which can be partitioned when necessary. The top three floors house the office and meeting rooms, where attractive ceiling-high glass elements reveal the interior.

The open up swivel chairs for offices are in white leather whereas the open up partner chairs in the conference and presentation rooms have a white membrane cover.
