Completion date: 2009
Products: netwin

In the spacious reception wing of the new building, the visitor immediately becomes aware that the company is a global player.

Apart from the company directors, all parts of the company work in the open space. The netwin system was used as office swivel chairs, visitor chairs and conference chairs. Here in the photo: workstations for equipment design and engineering. Photos: Sedus / DSN

In Altmühltal, Schmidt Seeger, the globally operating manufacturer of machines and equipment for cereals and seeds, malt houses and breweries, is located. Attractive working areas were created in the green but traditional location in a new office building with a reception wing. The highly qualified staff mainly work in the areas of technical design, project management in equipment construction as well as sales. A total of 400 employees work at different locations on technologies for cleaning, drying, sorting and storing renewable primary products.
